

Dewy

in the World of Colors

S a n d e r C r u z

Maybe we can find somebody with your orange color,' says Betsy, when they sit together on a flower. 'Somebody who can tell us who you are.'

Dewy lands in a field of sunflowers, next to a yellow frog. 'Hello yellow too,' says the frog, 'tell us, who are you?' 'I am Dewy,' says Dewy surprised, 'and I am looking for my family'.

Dewy looks around, amazed by the new color. He can see a caterpillar walk by and a bumblebee fly. 'You are yellow!' Betsy shouts surprised. 'How much yellow can you see?'

Betsy and Dewy watch how the frog paints sunflowers. 'I may be yellow this hour,' says Dewy, 'but I am not as pretty as a sunflower.'

Up and away flies Dewy, high in the sky. He feels the wind lifting him up and pushing him on. Over the fields he soars and on to the woods ...
